TH CREDIBILITY GAP SEEMS INEVITABLE...
One of the things that seems as certain as life, death, taxes and day light saving time, is that sooner or later a vast Credibility Gap opens up between the President & his Administration and Congress and the various individuals and groups that we amply refer to as the People. It should not be surprising that the present Administration is selling some kind of track record in developing this Occupational Disease, since nobody completely understood what Jimmy Carter was all about to begin with, and nothing much has happened to clear away the cobwebs since. According to reports from Washington there are a number of Congressmen & Senators who are boiled over the way Carter pulled the rug from under 'em after getting them to push the $60.00 Rebate. Of course, there had been other breaches of what they call Political Etiquette between White (CONT. ON PAGE 3)

Former Texas Ag Commissioner Gets Responsibility of Pushing Carter's Proposed Energy Plan for USDA

Present analysis of the overall effort of the energy plan outlined last week by President Carter by virtually all levels of agriculture, livestock and the food business is general is that they apparently can expect a fair shake, but that it will be an expensive adventure in conservation as costs and taxes included in the plan are applied. Particularly bothersome to many are the expected sharp rises in transportation costs.
Agriculture seems to have been recorded high priorities since any program which cripples food production is certain to create considerable heat from consumers and in Congress. Former Texas Agriculture Commissioner John White has emerged as top advocate for the President's plan from his post as Deputy Secretary of Agriculture. White was quoted as saying, "a whole" agriculture seems to have come off in good shape.
The President made only one direct reference to agriculture in his April 20 speech saying, "fertilizer manufacturers and crop drying, which must use natural gas," would be exempt from the proposed sliding-scale tax. White pointed out that USDA would like to avoid the proposed gasoline tax, but had no commitment from the White House in this regard.
White stated there is no indication the Administration plans a fuel allocation system, but predicted that should such a step be necessary, agriculture would have the same priorities (CONT. ON PAGE 8)

23-States Cattle On Feed Decline Estimated At 3%

Cattle in feedlots on April 1 were down 11% from the number on feed (CONT. ON PAGE 31)

Stuph & Thangs

House staffers & Congress, most of which were simply blamed on ignorance & inexperience or both.

The Credibility Gap between the White House and the News Media is also a lead pipe cinch to develop sooner or later so here again we are seeing some fast breakin' developments along this war zone. Recently Secy of Ag Bob Bergland embarrassed some of the news people when he let fly with that trial balloon on a Canadian-U.S. wheat cartel, and it later developed that it was just somethin' about as solid as conversation between him and one Casadio. Recently Bergland really teed off the press when he stated that the Poultry Industry had been puttin' pressure on him for an embargo on soybean sales overseas. The reporters dutifully reported this, and when folks started diggin' into it they could find no one who represented the Poultry Folks who had done any such thing. Then Bergland claimed he had been "misquoted," and the News People really howled and offered tapes and notes to prove they had not imagined the story. Later Bergland said if he did say it his fist musta "misspoke."

Now comes the great Energy Crisis Proggim, born of Carter and midwifed by James Schlesinger, the as yet unointed Energy Boss, and just to make sure the President's dire predictions of disaster frightened us enough, Schlesinger put some old cronies of the CIA to work on a summary of the Energy Outlook, which was sprung on us right ahead of Carter's law. After the News Media took this tale hook, line & sinker and plastered it on front pages & in prime time, they discovered it was simply a rehash of old stuff which they had already printed over & over and was no news. Then on the heels of this little caper, here comes a special report from a United Nations Committee that says there is oil & gas enuff for perhaps the next 70 to 100 years, we simply have to get it and it will also be very expensive.

It seems certain that Credibility Gaps will develop, since the situation forever changes and with it a President has to switch his priorities and targets, and sometimes it seems like it is hard to nail any thing down for sure. Probably one of the more embarrassing things of the kind was President Ford's Whip Inflation Now campaign with its WIN buttons, and the folk he had a Recession on his hands before the buttons got distributed around. Now that Carter is tryin' to switch his goal from depressed economic problems to control of inflation, someone suggested the other day that some of the fugitives from the Ford Administration were thinkin' about offarin' the Carter Crew their surplus WIN buttons at a cut rate bargain.

It is to be expected that no politician is going to embrace a simple solution to any problem, but one cure for the Credibility Gaposis might be take the old man's advice and he always said, "Just tell the truth, son, and then you don't have to remember what you said."

Ever thine,
The Editor.
P.S.: Uncle Dunk figures when those Energy Tax Dollars start rollin' in the Big Move in Washington will be a search for New Problems to throw all that money at. Dunk says if you can't figure out why the Govt wants to tax us for gas, oil, etc., and then rebate the money, you just ain't been payin' attention to how Washington works. Dunk says one of his South Texas operatives suggests that they amend the laws concernin' alien workin' in this country in such a way that anytime some Labor Leader or Reformer gripes about these pore folks workin' over here he should immediately have to take one of those jobs away from that alien for about 30 days. That much hard labor might revitalize some brenes here & there. — Thessell, Brothers!

PINZGAUER

Boot Strap Owners Helping To Shape Pinzgauer Future In U. S.

Canton, Texas — Dave Kaseman, an advertising man, Dan Anderson, Richardson, a lawyer, and George Murphy, Richardson, a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine, owners of Boot Strap Cattle Co., are some of the most enthusiastic Pinzgauer breeders in the country.

Their enthusiasm extends beyond breeding of Pinzgauer cattle into activities of Southwest and American Pinzgauer associations and Pinzgauer sales.

Kaseman, who has advertising firms in several southwestern cities, said the trio became friends in Junior Chamber of Commerce activities and decided to become partners and go into the cattle business, because all shared a desire for rural life.

"We chose Pinzgauer cattle because we wanted cattle which could take care of themselves on pasture without much feeding, would breed easily and calve without difficulty, and would be ideal for crossbreeding to produce the kind and size beef carcasses that the super markets and housewives want," Kaseman said. "We also chose Pinzgauers because we wanted to be active in a breed organization, and help shape policies of the organization."

Although Boot Strap Cattle Co. is only about two years old, its owners have been active members of several committees in both the Texas and American Pinzgauer associations, and Anderson has served as secretary of the state organization.

Kaseman said that one of the chief ideas they are promoting in the Pinzgauer associations is permitting Pinzgauer heifers to attain sufficient size and age to calve without difficulty before breeding them.

David and Lisa Kaseman, left, and George Murphy, Richardson, are shown behind the halfblood Pinzgauer heifer they bid on at $2,550 to top the National Western Pinzgauer Sale in Denver. A few days later she produced a heifer calf, Mrs. Joe Fletcher, wife of the consignor, from Sheridan, Wyo., is at the halter.

"Some other 'exotic' breeds of cattle have unnecessarily earned the reputation of being difficult breeders simply because the owners were looking for a fast payday and bred the heifers too young," Kaseman said.

"In our own operations, we don't breed the heifers until they are at least two years old and we haven't had any calving problems," he added.

The Boot Strap partners were also active in getting the national organization to implement a policy of recordation of heifers sired by three-quarter or higher percentage bulls so that up-breeding programs could be started without using artificial insemination.

A halfblood Pinzgauer cow with her three-quarter heifer calf of the Boot Strap Cattle Co., Canton, demonstrate quality of this young herd.

The Boot Strap partners have also been leaders at Pinzgauer sales, having purchased or consigned the top sellers at three of the association's consignment sales, including a bred halfblood heifer for $2,550 that topped the 1976 National Western Pinzgauer sale at Denver, which turned out to be a bonanza for them.

"The heifer was only a few days from calving when we bought her, and the consignor, Joe Fletcher of Sheridan, Wyo., took her back home and calved her for us — and she had a three-quarter heifer calf . . . Fletcher bought the pair back at a good profit to us without us ever bringing her to Texas," Kaseman said.

Boot Strap also bought one of the first pureblood Pinzgauer bulls to enter the U.S. He is called "Alamo" and has since been syndicated, and his semen is being collected and distributed by C.O.B.A.

Although Pinzgauer numbers are so limited in this country that none of the owners want to part with them, Boot Strap is taking its best halfblood cow and three-quarter heifer calf to the National sale which will be held in

Collier Diamond C Simmental Club Calves Average $412.50

Stephenville — In the Collier Diamond C Ranch Simmental club sale, 32 calves were sold for an average of $412.50.

John B. Collier IV, general manager of the ranch, said the sale was highly successful "and was certainly one of the most unusual such sales ever held in the State of Texas."

What made it so unusual was the manner in which the calves were presented to prospective buyers. Each buyer was given a number prior to the sale, and when his number was called he was permitted to select three head from the 60 head on display and start bidding on them at $500 each, the floor price set on the calves. If there were no bids, that buyer got them for the base price of $500.

Not many sold that way, as agriculture teachers and FFA and 4-H Club members from all over Texas and much of Oklahoma bid briskly for the choice calves. The 32 calves went to 19 different buyers.

Some of the volume buyers included:

1977 ASA Executive Committee: American Simmental trustees elected these men to guide the association during 1977. From left, seated: M. D. "Shag" Shepherd, Hyattsville, Nebraska — Treasurer; C. Ansel Armstrong, Menhatten, Kansas — President; Colville C. Jackson Jr., Gloster, Mississippi — Vice President. Standing: Milas Davies, Deer Trail, Colorado; Don Vanman, Bozeman, Montana — Executive Secretary; and Albert West III, San Antonio, Texas, Davies, West and the three officers constitute the executive committee. Election occurred during ASA's 9th annual convention, February 11, at Jackson, Mississippi.

February was truly outstanding. During this period, Rio Vista doctors and technicians performed 2,085 non-surgical procedures involving 17 broods of cattle that resulted in 1,658 confirmed pregnancies for a conception rate of 85 percent, according to West. "We know of no other transfer firm in the country that can match this record," he added.

This polled son of Parisien was top selling bull at the Herd Bull Premier Sale, held in conjunction with the American Simmental Association annual convention in Jackson, Mo. Sir Nick One, born January 12, 1976, was consigned by Nickson Simmentals, Inc., Vabian, S.D., and bought by J. H. Bagby Farms, Granville, Mo., for $16,800. ## TEXAS SHORTHORN NEWS

Rufus Hinton Maintained Size In His Shorthorns Through Opposite Trend

Venus, Texas — Rufus, Lucille and Mary Hinton whose Shorthorn Farm is located near Venus south of Mansfield, Texas, have loved with the belief that a big cow is a good cow. If she also carried the fertility, milking ability and other genetic traits necessary to producing a good, big calf.

All through the years when the beef cattle business was going to short, squatty, heavily beefed animals with a lot of waxy fat, Hinton was attempting to resist that trend by maintaining the size of his animals.

"That was hard to do because replacement for the large cattle became almost impossible to find," he says.

"Now that the trend has gone back to the taller, longer bodied and larger animals, I believe I'm ahead of many Shorthorn breeders in that respect," Hinton says.

He recalls that he was at a consignment sale in 1930 in which one of the consignors put a footnote on the listing of his lots that said that his cows were big — that he was milking 80 cows back at home and none of them weighed less than a ton. "Those cows impressed me and his statement stuck with me through the years," Hinton said. So much so, in fact, that many of Hinton's present cows weigh in the 1,400-1,500 pound range.

Through a combination of natural breeding to Hinton's herd sire, a bull that placed second in his class at the Dallas Fair two years ago, and by artificial insemination to some of the Shorthorn breed's top sires such as "Clark" and "Great White Hope," Hinton is getting the length of body, height and size he wants.

"I believe you have to stay in the breed, because breeding to large 'Exotic" breeds would dilute your blood lines and you could never get rid of that dilution," Hinton says.

Size and milking ability are two of the factors Rufus Hinton requires of his "keeper" Shorthorn females, some of which are doubly registered as both beef and milking Shorthorns.

Hinton has been active in Texas Shorthorn Association activities for many years and once served as a director of TSA, but in recent years his daughter, Mary, has been the more active member of the family. She was Shorthorn Lessee Princess one year, and was Texas Shorthorn Queen the next. She has also served in the publicity and information field as Texas Junior Shorthorn reporter, a job that also included reporting some of the senior association's activities.

Now she's assistant Home Demonstration Agent for Cooke County of Greenville, but is in the process of moving to a similar position at Plainview, where she will be married to an irrigation farmer later this year.

As a partner in the Hinton Shorthorn business at Venus, she will be carrying half of the herd with her in Plainview this summer.

Having started as a 4-H Club show of Shorthorns, Mary has graduated to becoming a breeder, and has recently added to her herd several outstanding heifers purchased from some of the top herds in Texas and Oklahoma. Part of them are being doubly registered as both Shorthorns and as Milking Shorthorns.

"We know that a Shorthorn steer can go into anybody's feedlot and out gain other English breeds or any other breeds, and although they will develop too thick a layer of fat if fed too long, the secret is to know when to stop feeding them and take them to slaughter," Hinton said.

"And it's well known that the Shorthorn meat has the mulling necessary to give it a superior taste and tenderness," Hinton said.

One of Hinton's greatest pleasures is taking visitors through his herd and showing them his good Shorthorns and talking Shorthorns. He invites anyone to visit anytime. The place is open at Highway 287 three miles south of Mansfield.

MAINE-ANJOU NEWS

Jay & Nita Jones Set First

Maine-Anjou Production Sale

Sunday, May 29 At Elm Mott

Elm Mott, Texas — Jay and Nita Jones, operators of C&F Cattle Co., 6-J Farms, and Cal-Tex Maine-Anjou, will host their first annual Maine-Anjou production sale beginning at 9 p.m. Sunday, May 29 at the ranch near Elm Mott just west of Waco.

Highlighting the sale offering will be two fullblood Maine-Anjou bulls one of which is Goliath's Bourne, a two-year-old son of Dollar II, who has been the Jones' herd sire, and would not be for sale except that they have bought four domestic purebred Maine-Anjou heifers and all four are daughters of Dollar II.

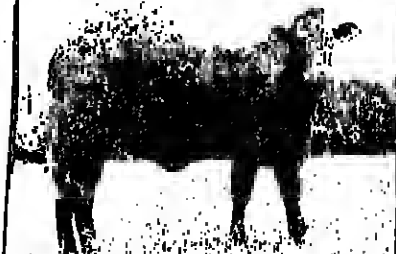

The other fullblood bull is being consigned to the sale by Texas Imports, Bismarville. This bull is a yearling son of Epinal out of an imported fullblood Maine-Anjou cow. This bull is the only animal consigned to the sale.

There will also be one 15/16ths daughter of Rambler 3M, one of the first 15/16ths heifers to sell in North America. The December 1976 heifer calf is out of a cow that was the high selling animal in the Heart of Texas Maine-Anjou sale at Waco last year.

Also selling will be three seven-eighths (domestic) purebred females, one of which is bred to a purebred heifer calf pair; four Bra-Maine heifers that are three-quarter Maine-Anjou and one-quarter Brahman; eight open three-quarter heifers; 12 halfblood bred females; three 7/8ths bulls; seven three-quarter bulls; and two 7/8ths bull calf pairs.

Jones said the Bra-Maines have aroused lots of interest already because of the popularity of Brahman-Exotic crosses.

Jay and Nita started breeding Maine-Anjous four years ago, and have been consistent buyers in most Maine-Anjou sales since then. Most all of the cattle in this sale offering will be ones they have raised themselves.

Three-quarter Maine-Anjou and one-quarter Brahman heifers like this promise to create buyer interest in Jay and Nita Jones' first Maine-Anjou production sale May 29.

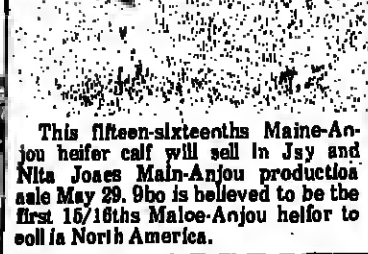

This pasture scene at Jay and Nita Jones' Cal-Tex Maine-Anjou at Elm Mott is typical of the condition their grass and cattle are in.

Jones said that since most of the cattle are ones they raised, they have cost only a little more to raise than any other cattle would have, and they are expected to sell at prices commercial cattlemen can afford.

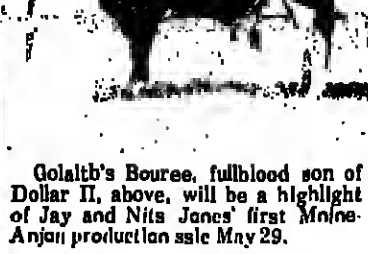

"For that reason, we are expecting to see a lot of the offering — especially the halfbloods — go to other Maine-Anjou breeders; or commercial cattlemen who are interested in getting cattle which raise bigger calves," he said.

Jones said that almost all breeds of cattle are included in the base from which his Maine-Anjous have been developed including both beef and dairy cattle.

Stanley Stout will be auctioneer.

This fifteen-sixteenths Maine-Anjou heifer calf will sell in Jay and Nita Jones' Maine-Anjou production sale May 29. She is believed to be the first 15/16ths Maine-Anjou heifer to sell in North America.

Goliath's Bourne, fullblood son of Dollar II, above, will be a highlight of Jay and Nita Jones' first Maine-Anjou production sale May 29.

A pre-sale party will be hosted by the Jones at the sale headquarters, the International Inn, 1820 West Interstate 35 in Waco on Saturday night before the sale. The International Inn has reserved a block of adjoining rooms for persons attending the sale and party.

A barbecue lunch will be served just prior to the sale.

The sale site can be reached by taking the Old Dallas Road Exit off I-35 north of Waco, then go one mile east and watch for signs.

Jones said motel reservations should be made as soon as possible, because a music festival is also being held in Waco that weekend, and motel space may become scarce.

For further information on the sale offering, contact Jay & Nita Jones, Route 1, Box 167-A, Elm Mott, Texas 76640, phone 917/822-1188.

Replacement Cattle Post Gains Again, Stocker, Feeder Cattle In Demand

Kansas City, Apr. 22 (USDA) — National Feeder Cattle and Calf Summary. Approximately 238,000 head of feeder cattle and calves were marketed last week; 225,000 last week; 221,500 this week. Feeder cattle and calf prices rose firm to 8.00 higher this week, many points 1.00-2.00 higher. Demand was exceptionally good on thin calves and lightweight yearlings suitable to graze as well as fleshy steers over 700 lbs., fleshy over 800 lbs. suitable to place on feed.

This is the third week of price advances with April now showing a 6.00-10.00 per cwt. gain over March. Moderate to generous rain showers in the great plains and cornbelt added further impetus to acquiring thin cattle and calves suitable to graze but there is concern in the high country because of the lack of snow cover and lately because of skimpy moisture. Meanwhile, eastern Texas and Louisiana were deluged. Some of the intermountain areas are going to barley because of the moisture situation and some corn acreage is being diverted to soybeans because of the soybean price situation. Forward contracting has crept in to the areas of California, Oklahoma and Montana, reflecting a somewhat cautious testing of future ideas.

Public Hearing On Hiring Aliens For Farm Work Set

He said the Department expects to gather information that will help "to safeguard job opportunities for U.S. workers and at the same time to assure that adequate labor supplies are available for agricultural employers to meet harvest and other needs."

Parsons, who is to testify at the public hearings in San Antonio, told the U.S. Labor Department to Dallas at 214/749-1589 before May 4, for information about filing a formal notice to appear.

Some of the major changes proposed in the new regulations include: Efforts to recruit U.S. workers. The proposed regulations extend last time periods during which efforts to recruit U.S. workers must be made and require specific U.S. recruitment plans from customary users of foreign workers.

Housing facilities. The proposed revisions in the regulations require growers to provide or arrange for family housing facilities if needed to assure the availability of employment opportunities for U.S. workers on a non-discriminatory basis.

Wages. Provisions in the new regulations are designed to eliminate inequities in present wage practices and to assure wages offered to U.S. workers are at least equal to those offered to aliens.

Guaranteed work time. The proposed new regulations involve minor modifications in the work time guarantee and how Sunday and holiday periods are covered.

Treatment of transportation costs and meal charges. Under the new proposed regulations, employers will have to pay some extra transportation costs, but no charge workers more for employer-furnished meals.

Shop-ranchers. Provisions excepting shop-ranchers from the requirement to independently recruit U.S. workers are scheduled to be removed.
